3. Large stocks of ammunition, destined for use by the Polish Navy, are stored in an area located about two and one half kilometers southeast of the Odra station and about one kilometer north of the village of Ognica. The buildings in which the ammunition is stored are, with one exception, one-story red and grey brick structures; the exception is a single two-story building. Several hundred anti-aircraft guns of various caliber are included among the stores. The buildings are fenced in by barbed wire and are guarded by Polish naval sentries. Polish naval forces occasionally engage in sharp shooting practice in this area, and casualties resulting from the exercises are taken to the garrison hospital at Swinoujscie.
